

Island Survival

One day in London a kid named James was born. He studied very hard at school. As he became big he made a friend named Mike. They became deep friends. After getting out of school, they decided to go abroad for higher education. They planned to go to South America. After saying goodbye to their families they got on board. Half way to South America the plane started jerking. The pilot said that the fuel was getting low. Then suddenly in a big jerk the pilot's head hit the turbo speed button and the pilot got faint. The plane started going very fast and in less than a minute the fuel finished. The plane started going down like a rocket. After it crashed, there was a great fire but it was a storm which finished the fire. Everyone else died except the two friends. When they woke up they were surprised that they were alive. James started running like mad because they were in an inhabited island. Mike didn't panic but he stayed calm. He told

James that they should find a cave to stay in. They found one in a hilly area. Mike said that they should bring useful things from the plane and James agreed. They found a lot of useful things in the plane, when they were going back to the cave they found a small cabinet. In the cabinet there was a tool box, they took it to the cave with everything else. They placed four suitcases in front of the cave, they had two hammocks and two guns on the side. The next day they started digging in the back of the cave and they made a sloped end. In it they placed the toolbox, some clothes, bullets and the food. After some time the food started getting low, James said that they should use the guns but Mike disagreed. Mike said that they should make traps to catch goats. The rest of the day they were digging a pit. After they made a pit they covered it with leaves and branches. The next day they found two she goats and one he goat, they brought these to the cave and then they started making a fence to put the goats in. After some months they had 19 goats. The next day Mike asked James to find water. He found one stream 500 metres in the west. Mike said that he knew how to make clay pots. He made an ugly thing but it could carry water. One day they were talking, suddenly James got an idea. He and Mike went to the shore and they took out the red carpet from the plane and placed it on the sand. It was a good thing to do as i will tell you later on this story. After coming back to the cave they sat on the hammocks, as they were talking Mike said that he wanted to make a chair and table. They somehow managed to make a table and two chairs. Then another day James thought that the cave wasn't safe enough so he and Mike made a fence by the metal pieces

Mike didn't like sitting in the cave all day so he told James that he was going to explore the island. James told him that he was coming along and Mike agreed. They went to the stream because Mike thought that the stream came from a river. Mike was right as after half a mile of walking they got in a beautiful valley, luckily Mike had a basket with him so he took many fruits home. The next day they went towards the east. After a mile they found a place full of goats. It was morning so they had time to make a trap. They made it like the first one. After an hour they caught 3 she goats and 1 he goat. They took these home and had a good meal. One day Mike said to James that he was going to the valley to collect some fruits and as he came back he brought a lot of delicious fruits. They also had a dog who brought them goats. The next day James was walking suddenly he saw a hen, he ran towards Mike and told him that he saw a hen. They took it to the cave and cooked it. After a week later when Mike was on the shore he heard a familiar sound, sound of wings. When he looked up and saw a plane he started running to James and told him about and then they started running towards the shore like mad. When the plane landed Mike asked the captain who he was. The captain told them his name and asked what they were doing on an inhabited island. They told him their story and said that they wanted to go home. The pilot wanted to see their home so he asked them to show their home but James said that he needed the pilot's phone if the pilot wants to see their home. The pilot agreed and gave James the phone, James made a video of the whole cave and then they got in the plane and flew to London. In a week they became famous all over the world.
