

SHARING BRINGS HAPPINESS

By Rabia Khalil

Once in a small village, there lived a poor family, comprised of four members namely: Mr. Frank, Mrs. Frank, Son (Max) and a daughter(Nila). Mr. Frank was a farmer, worked diligently from Dawn to dusk, to meet the needs of family members. Both children had stepped into a stage where they were qualified for taking admission in school. But Mr. Frank's income wasn't enough for bearing a school fees. The both parents always said, "sending out our children to school is our dream, but a dream not necessarily may come true."

While hearing such statements both children always been disappointed.

Additionally, they were not updated themselves about weather forecast.

They therefore, stored some food for survival in the time of need.

One day an unexpected drizzling rain commenced which later transformed into a storm and thunder as a result, all crops were destroyed. While seeing circumstances, Mr and Mrs. Frank were so much worried and disturbed because the stored sustenance would hardly meet the needs for three to four days.

However, the first two days went quietly and calmly.

As just a third day started, they had less stock left to cook which they prepared for meal. They were having a meal to start when a door knocked by someone.

Mr. Frank walked out to the door and asked, "who is outside?". "Well! I need your help and I am along with my family." stranger replied. Mr. Frank opened the door and saw a decent man was standing in front of him. "How can I help you?" Frank asked politely.

A stranger was just felt nervous but then hesitantly said, "I am George. A...Actually, would you please like to give some food. My children are so hungry and we have nothing left."

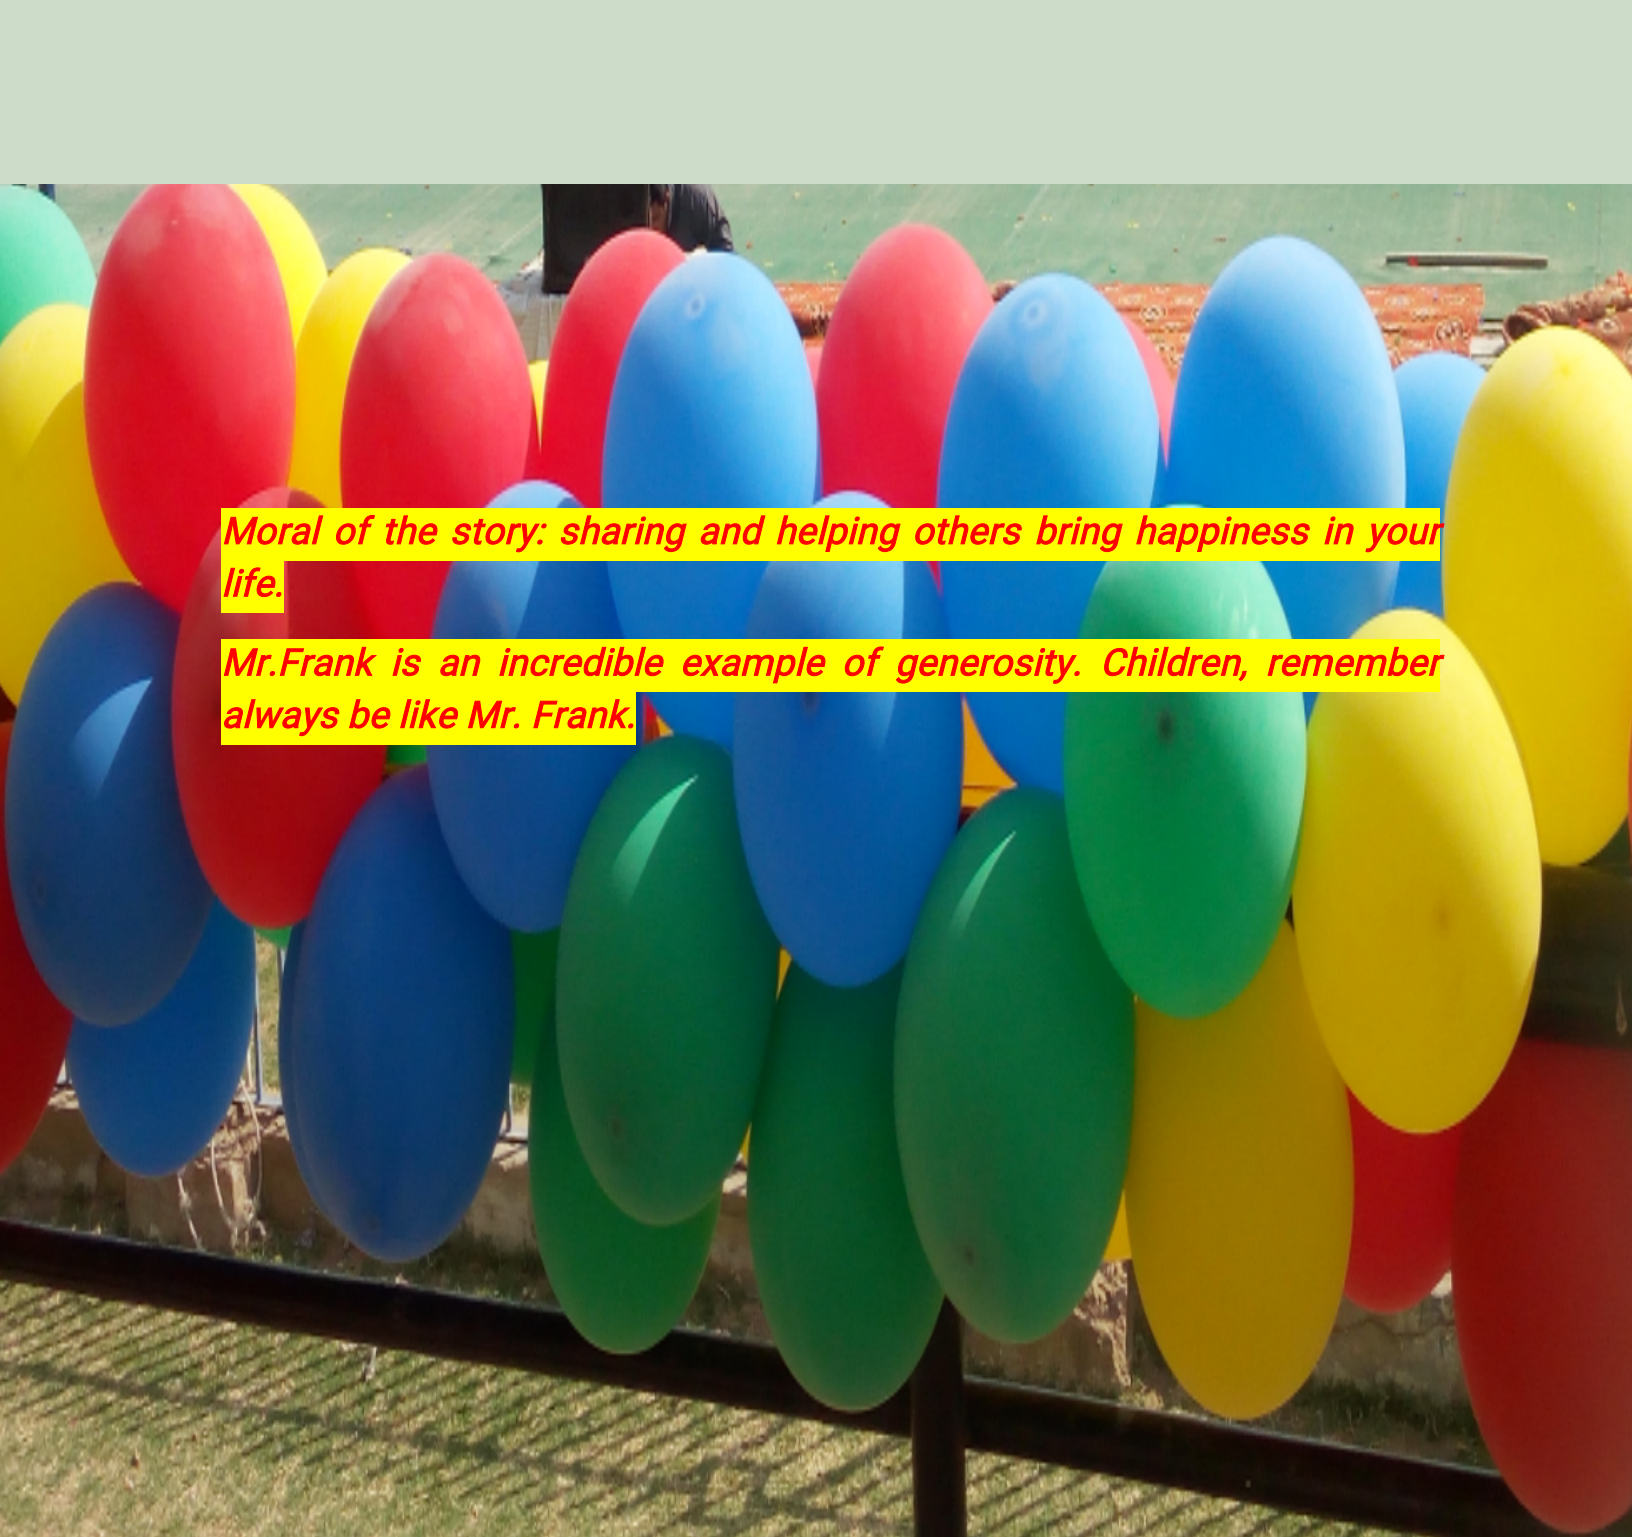

Frank was a humble person. Therefore he would not say "No" to help. He gave quantity of a cooked meal to him and with thanks, the stranger left while Mr and Mrs Frank had a less meal and they just wanted their children to eat.

Next morning, Mr and Mrs. Frank woke up with sadness, Mr. Frank said to his wife, "let me ask our neighbour to grant some money on loan. With a heavy heart, he went outside. All of a sudden, a voice came," Mr. Frank, Mr. Frank, please stop!"

Mr. Frank turned back and easily recognised that person was Mr. George. Mr. George remarked, "I am here to say thanks for your generosity. I would like you and your family to stay in my cottage. I have just one daughter, she would love to play with your children and yes, I want to state one more thing: don't about need to worry about children's school fees or other expenses. From now on, we are a family so it's my responsibility to pay it."

Moral of the story: sharing and helping others bring happiness in your life.

Mr. Frank is an incredible example of generosity. Children, remember always be like Mr. Frank.

The End